Methodology and Course Rationale

There are of course several ways of reading and interpreting Ibn Arabi's texts. What we propose in this course is a hermeneutic model of interpretation. Drawing on the theory of Paul Ricoeur, the hermeneutic model adopted in this course is based on two stages. The first stage consists in explaining the textual meanings of Ibn Arabi's spiritual openings. The second stage consists in exploring the "world-propositions" that Ibn Arabi's inner openings project into his readers (Ricoeur 1976: 87). This approach places emphasis on the active and interpretive engagement between the world of the text, the reader's world and Ibn Arabi's spiritual world.
